Paul Bell | BIO

For over 20 years, Paul Bell has worked in the film & television industry producing a wide range of content for national and international audiences, from the remote bush of Australia, to the streets of Tokyo and the wilderness of Antarctica.

Originally from the southwest of WA, Paul moved to Broome in 1996. He joined David Batty of Rebel Films working throughout the Kimberley on various documentary and educational projects. In 2001, Paul was accepted into AFTRS in Sydney to study cinematography in documentary, returning to establish his own production company, Feral Films.

Over the last 15+ years Paul has worked around the world as a freelance director, cameraman and editor for Lonely Planet TV, National Geographic, Discovery, Eurosport, ABC, BBC, SBS and CAAMA Television.

In addition to Paul's freelance work he has also produced numerous short and standard-length documentary films through his own production company Feral Films.

Feral Films mission is to deliver fresh, energetic and entertaining documentaries that celebrate the human spirit. Enthusiastic and with a warm sense of humour, this irrepressible production company brings to the screen stories and characters that surprise, inspire and continually delight. It's raw and off the edge filmmaking at its best.
